SW schools join ESA, voucher opposition

BY BOB DEMAREE

Southwestern-Jefferson County Consolidated Schools on Monday joined more than 170 school boards in Indiana that have adopted resolutions opposing House Bill 1005, Senate Bill 413, and other legislation seeking to establish Education Savings Accounts (ESAs) and expand vouchers.

The resolution — the same one adopted by the Madison Consolidated School Board at a meeting earlier this month — states "the costs of Education Savings Accounts and school vouchers are covered exclusively by our state's school tuition support fund, further providing fewer public dollars to fund our public schools and increase teacher salaries."

"This makes our stance public," said Southwestern school board president Rick Stockdale.

Meanwhile, the Peace of Prince Catholic Schools Commission announced recently its support for the legislation, noting the bills expand educational opportunities.

KDH acquisition by Norton still being finalized despite report

BY BOB DEMAREE

The acquisition of King's Daughters' Hospital by Norton Healthcare Inc. is moving closer to an agreement by the end of June, according to a report published in Louisville, but it's not a done deal according to a spokesman for KDH.

Michael Gough, executive vice and chief operating officer for Norton Healthcare, addressed the proposed acquisition in an article that appeared in Louisville Business First last week, noting Norton is "moving ahead to where Norton Healthcare will be taking over the sponsorship of that hospital."

However, Dave Ommen, KDH's public information specialist, said Monday "no definite agreement" has been reached at this time even though KDH and non-profit Norton Healthcare have been exploring the possibility of a partnership since a letter of intent was signed in November.

"There has not been any change," Ommen said. "The two sides continue to talk and look at various things. No final decision has been made. The process is ongoing. We have only had exploratory discussions since signing the letter of intent. How that partnerships shapes up or may work, there is no definite update to share."

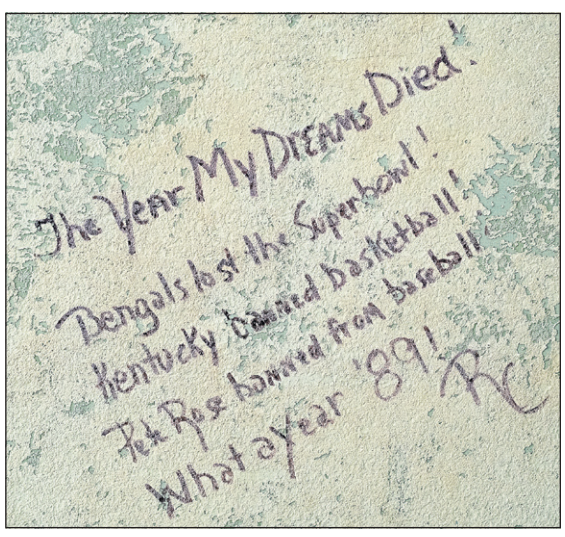
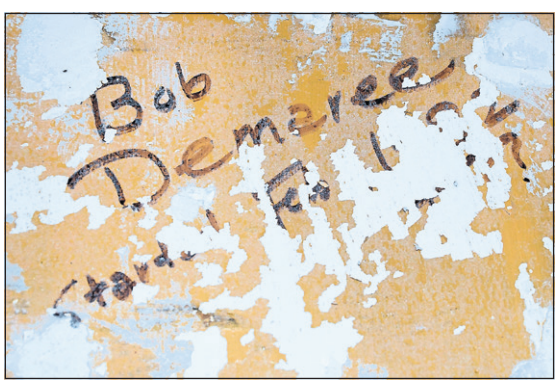
Uncovering signs of history

Photos by Mark Campbell

As part of the down-sizing at The Madison Courier — the printing press was removed and the warehouse cleared last month — the newspaper offices moving forward will occupy the north side of 310 West Street while the building's owners are renovating the south side for potential new tenants. Part of that work involves removing wallpaper that had been on the business office walls the last 31 years — hung in November 1989 after most of the employees of the time had signed their names on the wall in sort of a time capsule. The names include Publisher Don Wallis and future Publisher Jane Wallis Jacobs as well as then Editor Graham Taylor and Advertising Director Pat Lanman. Most of the employees have long since moved on and many have died but there are three employees still with the newspaper — Mark Campbell, Robin Cull and Bob Demaree — with Campbell now serving as editor with 36 years at the paper, Cull as the IT systems manager with 34 years and Demaree a reporter in his third stint with the Courier and a combined 13 years.





Left: Robin Cull had more to say than most but 1989 was obviously a rough year for her favorite sports teams. Above center: Then sports editor Bob Demaree was in his first of three stints with the newspaper covering 13 years and counting. Above right: Mark Campbell, the Kentucky Editor in 1989, was obviously growing weary from weeks of Carrollton bus crash trial coverage that would not wrap up until a full month later.

Mark and Julie Perkins are the textbook definition of the term "impresario." If you don't know the word, I'll save you the trouble of looking it up: "A person who organizes and often finances concerts, plays or operas."

In Europe back in the day, most of the great classical composers were supported by kings or nobility. In America's great cities, the arts are often dependent on the largesse of wealthy families and captains of industry. In Vevay, Indiana, it's Mark and Julie who stoke the fires of creative expression.

"We're not musically talented ourselves," explains Julie. "But music is very important to us, and we want to be a part of it. Supporting local musicians and hosting shows is what we can do to make it happen."

The performances take place in their spacious Victorian home in downtown Vevay, a place they have affectionately named Big Blue. "We visited Vevay on a vacation trip back in 2006," explains Mark. "Within hours of exploring the town I was saying 'I wanna buy a house here!' By 2008 we'd found and bought Big Blue and we started coming over pretty much every weekend while I was still working. Now I've retired and we're here full time."

"We were having our first Halloween party in the house," recalls Julie. "And I thought, why not see if we can host a live band in here? Our parlor is really big, and it opens to several other rooms. We had about 20 people that night and I could see the potential.

"Since that first show, what's it been, 13 years now, we've probably had about 100 music shows. Most of them are themed shows, like 60s or 70s or 80s, or Yacht Rock, or whatever we can think of. We like to dress up, and so do our friends."

Mark continues, "We can fit about 60 people in the house listening to the music, but between our big front porch and our back deck and the pool area out back, it's not unusual to host 80 or so. People say the house feels like an old friend, it's comfortable and low key. Musicians love playing here, the vibe is so intimate and warm."

"Our very first musical talent was Daryl Hewitt," says Julie. "We'd met him in Madison at the old Riverhouse Bar and started talking about him coming to Big Blue to play. He's played many times since then, too

Hanover holds final hearing on park's plan

Town close to filing grant application

BY BOB DEMAREE

With all the work nearly done on Hanover Parks' five-year plan, an application will soon be submitted to the Indiana Department of Natural Resources for a federal Land and Water Conservation Fund grant in time for the April 15 deadline.

On Tuesday, the parks committee held its final public hearing on the five-year plan.

"We're excited about what's getting ready to happen," said park committee member Rick Schnebelt. In addition to the federal grant, the park committee will apply for other grants to improve Hanover's three parks Hanover Community Park, Rainbow Park and Fireman's Park.

Don Server, chairman of the park committee, called the five-year plan "a living document" and anticipates what they do will change through the years "as we get more input and more ideas about what the public wants."

The town board and park committee are thinking beyond the five-year plan with visions of a multi-purpose building that would include a gym, walking track, exercise/weight rooms and more.

Over the last few months, the park committee has been surveying the committee about its top five needs and/or wants, and the final result was movies, music and festivals as the number one item followed by a splash park at number two, walking and fitness trails at number three, a skate park at number four and a dog park at number five.

The park committee announced what Hanover Town Board has determined as the top five needs. He said they align closely with survey results. At the top of the board's list is infrastructure, which Server noted amounts to "focusing on what we currently have and what needs to be done to improve." Among those are lighting and security for the public, along with work to maintain and improve ball fields, buildings, shelter houses and courts.

Next on the town board's list is an amphitheater to provide a place for festivals, music and movies, a favorite from the community survey. The third item in the board's list is trails and fitness stations. "People like to walk and be outside," said Server, noting there is a need for upgrades those areas to be ADA compliant.

The fourth choice of the board is a Splash park. Server noted that any efforts toward accomplishing that will involve having the budget, funding and equipment to maintain the facility.

The fifth choice involves park expansion which might include soccer fields, a gymasium, a dog park and more.

Schnebelt said the parks system is already gaining traction with the hiring of Scott Davidson as parks director just a few months ago. "In short time, we have opened up all kinds of activities," Schnebelt said, adding there have not just been events for youths but seniors, too.

Davidson said the support of the community through sponsorships is helping move the parks programs forward including $18,000 toward new scoreboards. "Our parks programs have been too long dormant, and the community has stepped in to get it going again," he said.

Schnebelt noted in the end the top mission of the parks system "is for people to have fun when they come to the park" whether it's for programs like Saturday's Easter Egg Hunt or to play in one of the leagues.

"It was great to see the joy on kids' faces," Schnebelt said, noting that many of the families stayed afterwards Saturday to enjoy the park. "Hopefully, by what we're doing, we're building a great rapport with the community."

MUSIC

many to count. Daryl is kind of our house band, you might say.

"We've also featured Anthony Ray Wright and the Girton boys a lot, they are from Vevay. Michael Kruse is a regular, and Kathy Holcomb. Joe and Heidi DeVito, who go by the name Glad Janice, debuted their act here. But probably our biggest name we've had is guitar legend Tyler Mac. He's from Pendleton, Indiana, but he lives in Pensacola these days."

"Obviously this is not a for-profit enterprise," interjects Mark. "We do it for the love of music and to help energize the town. Everybody pitches in to pay the band, and it all works out. But it's worth every penny. Just seeing the collaboration and the jams that can develop. Seeing such talented musicians having a great time and engaging with the audience. It's something we love doing and we're committed to it."

"Other people in Vevay have discovered that it's possible to bring live music into your home," says Julie. "And I would say the same thing to our many Madison friends, too. It doesn't have to be super expensive or complicated. Just hire a local musician or band, Madison sure has plenty to choose from, and invite your friends over for a party. Nothing is more fun or rewarding!"

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK

It's finally getting warm enough to get up off your COVID Couch and start getting out there to see live music in Madison! The three main downtown music venues are all back online (Thomas Family, The Taproom, and Mad Paddle) with consistent weekend music, and the other venues like The Broadway, Riverboat Inn and soon The Lighthouse will be kicking in too. The great thing about most of these venues is they have outdoor seating options as it gets warmer, so even though COVID should still be a caution when it comes to indoor activities, you can sit out in the open air and start living the music life again! I'll see you out there, supporting Indiana's Music City.

Charlie Rohlfing is a retired advertising man and partner in The Red Bicycle Hall music venue. Look for his distinctive fedora bobbing above the crowd, anywhere live local music is happening.

Madison man facing rape and misconduct with minor charges

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

A 24-year-old Madison man has been charged with rape and sexual misconduct with a minor, both felonies, based on an investigation by the Madison Police Department.

Robert Rollins Clark Jr., 24, of Madison, was taken into custody without incident and lodged in the Jefferson County Jail without bond. Clark has been charged with rape, a Level 3 felony, and sexual misconduct with a minor, a Level 4 felony, in connection with an alleged incident on Saturday, March 27.

Robert Rollins Clark Jr.

Madison Police Detective Shawn Scudder began investigating the case after the alleged victim was taken to Cincinnati Children's Hospital for a medical evaluation and then interviewed at the Children's Advocacy Center of Southeastern Indiana.

As a result of information obtained, MPD officers sought and received a search warrant for Clark's Madison residence. Evidence and information obtained by investigators was then presented to the office of Jefferson County Prosecutor David Sutter for review and a warrant was sought and obtained for Clark's arrest.

Clark was taken into custody without incident on Monday, March 29.

Scudder was assisted with the investigation by MPD Detective Kyle Cutshaw and Patrolmen Trent Smith and Cameron Blankenship.

Ripley man arrested in Holton shooting death

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

After weeks of investigation, Indiana State Police arrested a Ripley County man Friday in connection with the January slaying of a 36-year-old woman from near Holton.

Jordan Knudson, 36, has been charged with murder, a Level 1 felony, in connection with the shooting death of his former girlfriend, Kristina Krissy Jones, 36, of near Holton in Ripley County.

An investigation by detectives with the Indiana State Police-Versailles Post began shortly after a 9-1-1 call was placed in the early morning hours of Jan. 11, 2021, that Jones hads been found unresponsive in the bathroom of a residence on County Road 700 West just north of Holton. Jones was pronounced dead at the scene with injuries indicating that she was the victim of a homicide.

Jordan Knudson

An autopsy conducted soon after Jones' death indicated that she had died as a result of gunshot wounds. The investigation by ISP detectives led to a suspect, Jordan Knudson, who was formerly in a relationship with Jones. At the conclusion of the two-month investigation, the case was presented to the Ripley County Prosecutors Office for review and a warrant was issued for the arrest of Knudson for Murder, a Level 1 felony.

Indiana State Police arrested Knudson on Friday, March 26, when he arrived at the Jennings County Courthouse in Vernon for a hearing in an unrelated auto theft case. Knudson was lodged at the Ripley County Jail without bail pending his initial appearance in Ripley County Circuit Court.

KDH

The headline on the Business First article was a more definitive, "Norton Healthcare to acquire Indiana hospital."

"When I saw that headline, it was a little misleading," said Ommen. "It was not fully accurate."

The article also quoted Gough that, "There have been no showstoppers and we're moving ahead to where Norton Healthcare will be taking over the sponsorship of that hospital and then, after we close, it will be part of the Norton system."

If Norton is to take over KDH from the Bethany Circle of King's Daughters' of Madison Indiana Inc., KHD would become Norton King's Daughters' Hospital, according to the rticle.

File

Norton Healthcare operates six hospitals in Jefferson County, Kentucky, but KDH would be the first hospital that it owns and operates outside of Kentucky. However, Norton Healthcare has a joint venture with Brentwood, Tennessee-based LifePoint Health Inc. called the Regional Health Network that operates Scott Memorial Hospital in Scottsburg, Indiana, and Clark Memorial Hospital in Jeffersonville, Indiana.

In the article, Gough went on to say that KDH has "done done a great job in stand-alone. It's one of those unusual situations where normally lots of systems will come to larger systems — not just here but in the U.S. — when they're financially struggling, and they have to do something" ... KDH is "certainly is not in that position at all. They want the hospital in good hands for the long-term and the reason why they selected us, they tell us, is because of our long history and our missions, visions, values and our cultures lined up well."

The federal Centers of Medicare and Medicaid Services rate KDH five stars based on a five-star quality rating system. The article also listed public data showing KDH, a nonprofit, had revenue of $129 million in 2019 and $137 million in 2018 and posted profits of $3.9 million in 2019 and $10.9 million in 2018.

"The due diligence in a process like this continues," Ommen said on the letter of intent between Norton and KDH. "There is no definite agreement."

Southwestern opens season with walk-off win

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Southwestern won the first high school baseball game played locally in nearly two full years in its final at-bat, Monday, beating Henryville 4-3 at home.

The Rebels rallied from a 3-2 deficit with runs in the sixth and the seventh innings — the last producing the game-winner when Zach Cole trotted home from third on Jordan DeAtley's infield hit.

Like everybody else, Southwestern had not played a game since the 2019 season due to the COVID-19 pandemic and getting a walk-off win in game one of 2021 was icing on the cake.

"I'm very proud of them. We're playing three freshmen and in reality, our sophomores are freshmen baseball-wise since there wasn't a season last year," said Southwestern coach Dan Thurston, the former Madison coach who was making his Rebel debut in the dugout after 10 years away. "I'm very proud of the way they competed. That's a good team over there and we never backed down."

Other than a few hiccups in the middle innings, it was a well-played game by both teams. Southwestern pitcher Cole and his counterpart Dawson Hope breezed through the first three innings before the Rebels broke through with a pair of runs in the bottom of the fourth when William Stockdale and Ethan Stewart each singled and scored on RBIs by Landon DeAtley and Jackson Stockdale.

Thurston, a former coach at Madison, was back in uniform for the first time in 10 years. Left: Zach Cole (22) scores the game-winning run in the bottom of the 7th as Thurston celebrates after Southwestern walked off with a 4-3 win.

Henryville touched Cole for three runs in the fifth with Carson Conrey's two-run single the big blow to pull ahead 3-2.

Southwestern tied the game in the sixth when Jamison Lewis singled in Landon DeAtley and then manufactured the winning run in the seventh when Cole drew a one-out walk, stole second and went to third on a wild pitch. After William Stockdale walked, Jordan DeAtley hit a slow roller to second base and Cole was able to cruise across the plate to end the game.

"With this team I think we're going to need to (manufacture runs). We're going to need to bunt and hit and run and do those things to be successful," Thurston said. "That's what we worked on the past two weeks, the small ball side of the game, and it worked today."

Other than the fourth inning, Cole was dominate on the mound. The junior struck out 10 and walked just one while allowing two earned runs on three hits in six innings. Jordan

Austin rallies to beat Southwestern softball 10-7

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Austin rallied to score six unanswered runs and beat Southwestern 10-7 in the softball season opener for both teams on Tuesday in Hanover.

The Rebels used aggressive base running to score runs in each of the first three innings and take a 7-4 lead into the fourth.

But Austin flipped the tables in the fourth, scoring four times in the inning and adding solo runs in the fifth and sixth innings to pull away.

The loss spoiled the head coaching debut of Paula Fulton for the Rebels, but just the fact that the team was on the field at all after two years away due to COVID cancellations was a victory in itself.

"It was perfect weather for a first game and we were just happy to have the girls out here on the field," Fulton said. "Everybody has had two years off. I told the girls to embrace the fact that we are out here and we've still got ballgames to win. I'm disappointed that we lost but I love the effort that they gave today."

Southwestern was seemingly in control after the first three innings. The Rebels scored two runs in the first on an RBI single by Morgan Mahoney and an error, added two more runs without a hit in the second and got a two-run double by Olivia Bruce and two errors to score three runs in the third.

But Austin stayed within striking distance with three runs in the third and then took the lead in the fourth with four runs highlighted by Rylie Buchanan's two-run home run. Southwestern had its chances over the final three innings, stranding runners in scoring position in each, but could not cash in for a run.

"We played very aggressive out of the gate. We had a lot of energy and then we settled down and stopped being aggressive. That killed us," Fulton said. "We were taking chances on the basepaths and we went away from

TRIMBLE FALLS AT LUDLOW

Ludlow scored six runs in the bottom of the first and pulled away for a 10-2 win over Trimble County in the baseball season opener for both teams on Monday.

Trimble scored solo runs in the first and third innings to pull within 6-2 but a four-run sixth allowed Ludlow to seal the win.

Dalton Penick was 2-for-3 with a double and two RBIs to lead Trimble while Tucker Smith had two hits and scored a run.

Bryce Rose started and took the loss for Trimble after allowing six runs on five hits in one inning with three walks and no strikeouts. Penick, Ricky Robinson and J.T. Wilcoxson each took turns on the mound.

Trimble, now 0-1 on the season, hosts Spencer County today in its home opener and heads to Lloyd Memorial on Friday.

SCHOOL

In other business:

• Superintendent Jeffrey Bates said interviews are underway for a new middle school principal. First round interviews are taking place this week with plans to interview the top three candidates next week. The position will be open when current Principal Jason Watson transitions to his new role as assistant superintendent. Once the new principal is hired and begins duties at the start of the 2021-2022 school year, Watson will assume duties full-time as assistant superintendent.

• Awarded a bid for school bus block heaters to North Electric of Scottsburg for $15,877. The bid was slightly higher than a $15,749 offer by Biehle Electric of Seymour. However, Bates said the two bids were close enough that it was decided to go with North Electric because "we have dealt with them in the past, and have been very pleased with their work." One other bid was from Miller Electric of Louisville for $18,122.

• Awarded bids to seal cracks, apply a seal coat and do striping work on the elementary, middle school and high school parking lots to Commonwealth Paving of Louisville at a cost of $19,250 for the elementary school and $32,900 for the middle and high school. The other bid was from Sedam Contracting of Hanover at $25,617 for the elementary school and $55,917 for the middle and high school.

• Agreed to purchase a 2021 school bus at a cost of $120,644. Laura Boldery, corporation treasurer, noted the Wilson Center obtains all bus bids for the school corporation and that Midwest offered the lowest price at $120,644. Other bids were Kerlin at $121,945 and MacAllister at $126,046.

• Approved two-year extensions for nine contract bus drivers. Boldery noted one bus drivers, Jerry Adams, is retiring. She said the school corporation will take over that route, and then re-evaluate whether in the future to add another contract route.

• Honored Linda Shepherd, central office administrative assistant, on her retirement after 43 years with the school corporation. Shepherd, who has been employed by Southwestern since 1978, said she has "worked with a lot of great people. I enjoyed it, but I am looking forward to retirement. I will always be a Rebel."

• Accepted the retirement of Randy Brinson as full-time custodian effective Nov. 7. Brinson had requested working nine months as a part-time employee beginning Jan. 3. Accepted the resignation of Hailey Young as custodian effective March 18. Hired Haley Garrett as assistant girls varsity tennis coach.

• Approved a request by agriculture teacher and FFA advisor Wesley Powell to attend an instructor field school on small engine technology July 20-22 at Southern Arkansas University in Magnolia, Arkansas. The fee for the conference is $500 with lodging at $238. Bates noted that participants of the workshop learn engine technology and receive actual engines for use in the classroom.

"He will be able to bring the engines back to use in the classroom and put back together," said Bates, who noted that the value of the engines more than makes up for the cost of the workshop.

The board also approved a request for Dawn Moore to attend a virtual State Board of Accounts (SBOC) Extra-Curricular Account (ECA) workshop at a cost of $50.

• High School Principal Matt Owens congratulated the Southwestern boys basketball team for advancing to the regional finals. He added that Monday was Southwestern's first baseball game of the season, which he said is "more significant than normal because last year we did not have spring sports" due to COVID-19.

• Elementary School Principal Robert Adams announced that Kindergarten pre-registration is Thursday, April 15, from noon to 6 p.m. in the elementary school gym.

Ditching the cheating boyfriend

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: My boyfriend and I have been together for 10 years. Everything was good until three years ago when a woman contacted me to tell me that she'd been seeing him. She apologized to me for it. After we got off the phone, I found her on Facebook and realized that they'd been "liking" each other's posts for years. She even posted a photo of them together, and someone had commented making a sexual joke about them. They'd both replied and laughed.

So, I confronted my boyfriend, and he stopped — or so I thought. Then, six months ago, I found charges on his credit card statement for some local hotel! I confronted him, and he brushed it off, said it hadn't been him.

We have smart security cameras at our front and back door, and ever since I confronted him about the middle-of-the-night hotel charges, he's disabled my ability to access the camera feeds from my phone. But I can always tell when he's with her because he won't answer his phone. (Otherwise, he always answers his phone.) I just hate the thought that the last 10 years were for nothing. — Had It Up to Here

Dear HIUTH: Make decisions based on your future, not on your past. You're caught up in the sunk cost fallacy — continuing your current relationship just because you've already spent so much time in it and don't want it to have been a waste. The thing is, it wasn't really a waste. Consider the good moments you've had, even with your boyfriend. Consider the tough, character-building moments, too. It's all added up to a meaningful period of growth and lessons you can take into the next decade — after leaving this lecher in the last. Which you must do, pronto.,

Dear Annie: In response to "In a Quagmire," the gentleman who had difficulty using a computer: Computers confound me to no end. I enjoy my games and texting on my phone. I tweet a bit. But when it comes to any task where I'm expected to have the least amount of computer skills, it's incredibly frustrating — as frustrating as not being able to get a "real" person on the phone to help me. I graduated high school summa cum laude but that has no influence on my computer skill, and "In A Quagmire" needn't question his smarts. I just accept it as a place where I need help. Self-professed computer geeks are usually willing to step in and help. And in this day and age, if you have a child, grandchild, niece or nephew, they're often able to help. — J. Mac

Dear J. Mac: I heard lots of sympathetic feedback for "Quagmire," including the following practical tip for adults who have struggled to get the hang of computers despite years of trying and lessons.

Outgrown this relationship

Dear Annie: I've been in a relationship with "Stuart" for almost three years now. In that time I've grown a lot, working to become healthier physically, mentally and financially. I eat healthily and work hard at my job. I no longer drink alcohol. I want to be the best version of myself.

However, Stuart is in a different mindset. He smokes a pack of cigarettes a day and marijuana several times a day and in his free time is glued to Facebook or games. He wakes up daily hacking up the gunk in his lungs.

I'm concerned for his health; my dad died when I was 17, and he had similar issues. I've brought this up with my boyfriend but he acts like I'm nagging. He seems to have no motivation. He is content as he is, and I don't feel comfortable forcing him to change. I don't want to hurt him because he has been wonderful to me during tough times. But I feel we have grown to be very different people. Or maybe just I have changed.

How do couples continue if one is evolving and the other is content as is (even if unhealthy)? — Sad in Illinois

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Sad in Illinois: From your letter, it sounds as though you are emotionally intelligent, with keen self-insight. Because of that, I believe you will recognize the right choice for yourself (and be able to act on it) once you develop just a little more self-confidence. Toward that end, I strongly encourage you to read "Codependent No More" by Melody Beattie and to attend a few meetings of a support group such as Nar-Anon, LifeRing Recovery or Co-Dependents Anonymous. I have a feeling you'll recognize your story in others' there, and that solidarity will give you the strength to keep growing, whether or not that means replanting yourself elsewhere.

Dear Annie: I just read your response to "Yuletide Usurper," who had a falling out with her sister over a fight on Christmas years ago, and I agree with you wholeheartedly. From personal experience, it is worth taking the time to mend fences now before too much time passes.

Not too long ago, my younger sister pushed me out of her life. My husband and I had moved about six hours away for his job, and that seemed to deeply upset her.

Over the next five years, I called, sent cards to the kids, did whatever I could, but we never reconnected. One night, I was trying to look up my niece online to see if she'd graduated high school. Instead, I found my sister's obituary. She had died a month earlier of a chronic illness. For years, she'd been sick, and I never knew. She excluded me from her obituary and had no services. I've tried calling my brother-in-law, wrote to them, begged my niece or nephew to call me. It's been three years — nothing.

The moral of the story is this: Don't let another day go by without making up. In retrospect, I should have driven the six hours and made her listen to me. She was only 56 years old, and I always thought we'd reconnect at some point. It never happened. — MM

Dear MM: I am so sorry for the loss of your sister and the way things were between you two when she died. Your point is well taken: We should do all we can to mend fences with family members. But for what it's worth, it sounds as though you did do that. You tried, again and again, to reconnect with your sister. My heart hurts for you that, for whatever reason, she was unable to meet you halfway. I appreciate your letter.
